Seasons & Transitions

FIRST COME CANDY HEARTS, THEN LEPRECHAUNS are in season, and finally the first day of Spring arrives. Nothing beats the sweet pleasure of spotting the first daffodils and tulips of the new season—the re-greening of the neighborhood.

This year try something different: get out, get away, and take advantage of spring break. More families than ever before are using this week-or-so vacation from school (and work!) to grab quick trips both near and far. Some people even claim they enjoy their spring flings more than their summer vacations: crowds are fewer and smaller in number, airfare is lower, and the weather is often mild.

Also—did you ever wonder why your kids talk to themselves? It's actually a natural and productive process. Find out what it's all about.

Read about the latest gadgets and additions to America's favorite family vehicle: the minivan. And finally, save a little time to make delicious Irish soda bread plus a fast and easy savory supper for those last cold days of winter or spring's early bluster.

Here's to the change of season from everyone at The Disney Channel Magazine.

RECIPE PG. 15

Getaways SPRING BREAK

For many families the pace of life from the holidays to spring break is unrelenting. That's why travel consultants say the spring fling has suddenly become so popular.

Spring break fits many families' budgets and work schedules far better than a traditional summer vacation. For parents with younger children, the idea of packing up for a week isn't as daunting as a longer trip. Airfares, hotels, and cruise rates are typically lower than in the peak season. And many places—from theme parks to national parks—are far less crowded.

Susan Lloyd-Davies, of CruiseMasters, in Los Angeles, took her nine-year old daughter on a cruise last spring and loved it. "We needed the break," she says. "And it was great to have something special to look forward to."

Lloyd-Davies says she sees more and more families wanting to split their two-week vacations in half, taking one week in the spring and the other week in summer. "One week is just more manageable," she says.

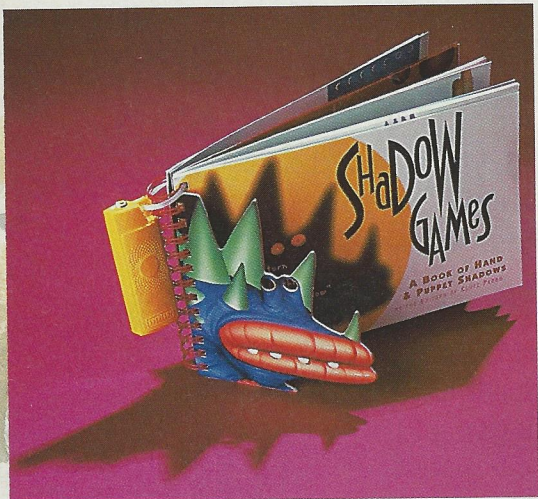

For cruiselines spring break is almost as busy a time as summer, since the seven-day holiday is a common trip length for many cruises. But accommodations are easier to book since break dates vary widely between school districts and regions. Prices now are especially good because many cruise lines have recently introduced new ships, which increased the carrying capacity. Some cruise lines offer special programs for children, with kids' menus and reduced or free rates for children under 12.

Dave Wiggins, who owns American Wilderness Experience, in Boulder, Colorado, says many families take advantage of the spring break to seek

Making Shadows

Kids love making animal hand shadows, and Shadow Games (Klutz Press, 1996, $10.95) gives inspiration and clear help on how to make them. The book comes with a sealed-battery flashlight.

Hearts for Crafts

Valentine's Day is a terrific excuse to take the time to help your child make daisy wreaths, lavender wands, a pocket purse, or rose-colored glasses. Sheri Brownrigg has gathered together ideas for wearable art and heart crafts in her new book Hearts & Crafts (Tricycle Press, 1996, $13.95).

warmth and active outdoor fun at western ranches in Arizona or Texas. Choices range from working spreads to luxurious destinations that redefine the traditional notion of dude ranches. Visitors at either end of the scale will find plenty of opportunities for horseback riding, sightseeing, hiking, arts and crafts—and plenty of old-fashioned southwestern-style food.

For seven days, a ranch experience can cost from $1,200 to $1,500 per adult for double occupancy; kids' prices are typically discounted by 10 to 20 percent. Wiggins adds that many ranches offer special programs for children.

Going places in the spring rather than in the summer gives travelers a sense of what a place is really like. With fewer tourists present, most spots are totally different than when trampled by visitors.

"Spring break isn't just for college students," Wiggins says. "It's a great opportunity for quality family time."

QUESTIONS TO ASK WHEN BOOKING A FAMILY CRUISE

Thinking of taking a cruise with your kids? Here are the key questions to ask, according to Susan Lloyd Davies of CruiseMasters in Los Angeles:

- 1) Is there a year-round children's program available and what is its counselor-to-child ratio?
- 2) What's the minimum age for the program?
- 3) Is there a teen program and how is it structured?
- 4) Are there dedicated children's facilities on board?
- 5) Are activities available when the ship is in port?
- 6) Is nightly babysitting available?
- 7) Are high chairs, booster seats, and cribs on hand?
- 8) Are there washer and dryer facilities on board?

Van Fans

WHAT'S THE MOST POPULAR FAMILY VEHICLE IN AMERICA TODAY?

The minivan, of course. While only 14,000 minivans were sold in 1982, 1,300,000 minivans were bought by 1994. Experts predict the trend will continue as the boomers' children turn into teens.

The versatility of minivans meets a need: more families than ever are interested in outdoor adventure as well as carpooling to school and to soccer games. With that growth in popularity come loads of new features, making the interiors feel more like luxury sedans than trucks:

- Safety and security features such as keyless entry, dual airbags, and built-in child seats;
- Left-side sliding doors;
- Dual-zone climate controls;
- Cup holders that fit virtually any size of beverage;
- 30% more exterior glass for improved visibility;
- Larger wheels that improve handling and stability;
- Rear electrical outlets for TVs, coolers, and more;
- Memory power seats that can be automatically adjusted for two different driver preferences;
- Leather upholstery;
- Electric exterior colors: purple, hot yellow, tangerine.

THE X THAT MARKS THE SPOT on top of a round of Irish Soda Bread stands for "break here." Waiting to tear off a quarter hunk of the too-hot-to-handle loaf is almost as hard as catching a leprechaun. Serve the bread warm for breakfast with sweet butter and marmalade or honey. Irish Soda Bread that has cooled can be sliced and toasted.

IRISH SODA BREAD

- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- 1 cup whole wheat flour
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2/3 cup buttermilk
- 1 egg, lightly beaten
- 2 tablespoons melted butter

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Butter 8-inch skillet and set in oven.

In a large bowl combine flours, sugar, baking powder, baking soda, and salt. In a separate bowl combine milk, beaten egg, and butter. Stir into dry ingredients to blend. Turn out on a floured surface and knead about 1 minute or until dough is smooth. Shape into a round loaf and place in preheated pan. With a sharp, floured knife score a deep X across the top of the loaf. Reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees and bake about 30 minutes, until browned.

Makes 1 loaf

NOTE: Bread can be made with 2 cups all-purpose flour, omitting whole wheat flour. An 8-inch cake pan can be used instead of a skillet. Preheat oven to 350 degrees and do not preheat pan.

Need to Know WHY CHILDREN TALK TO THEMSELVES

It's called self-talk or private speech: that chit-chat we overhear when children are lying in their cribs at nap time, staging a plastic pirate attack, playing with dolls all alone, or trying to solve a thorny puzzle or a math challenge. Is such talk normal?

Absolutely, says Laura Berk, a professor of psychology at Illinois State University. Berk has long studied the phenomenon. "It's an essential part of cognitive development, a sign that children are challenging themselves as they sort out a complicated universe."

A benefit of private speech is that children learn to use their thoughts and ideas to guide their behavior. It helps children to put some breaks on their natural impulsiveness and digest their experiences.

Self-talk also allows children to experiment and practice with language. They begin mastering social skills, especially when play-acting.

When children are faced with a new task or an intellectual challenge, they will typically say out loud that which they find to be most puzzling. As competence and confidence builds, self-talk turns into inaudible muttering. When children eventually succeed at the task, self-talk turns silent.

Sometimes parents and teachers discourage private speech when a child enters school, usually out of concern that the sound disturbs others. But Berk encourages adults to be tolerant of a child's self-talk, since research has found it is a necessary tool in developing important skills.

Parents often wonder if they should step into the conversations they are overhearing. Berk encourages them to sit down with the child and participate. But she warns parents not to take over the action or the problem solving, but to work right along with the child.

As children grow older, private speech declines. Some children with learning disabilities use private speech over a longer period of time: that can be a sign of their needing more support, says Berk.

Some kids rarely talk to themselves. Berk says. "There's lots of individual variability, and we don't yet understand exactly why."

But it is hard to find a child who never uses private speech. Even hearing-impaired children sign to themselves.

"Private speech is a universal aspect of development," Berk says, "basic to the human psyche." What about parents who sometimes talk to themselves? "Not to worry," Berk laughs. "It's probably stress."

RAISING NON-VIOLENT CHILDREN

RESearch HAS SHOWN that violent or aggressive behavior is often learned early in life. The American Psychological Association and the American Academy of Pediatrics have teamed up to produce a free, new booklet, "Raising Children to Resist Violence: What You Can Do." The booklet gives specific suggestions and points out potential warning signs. FAST & EASY: A COLD WEATHER DINNER

KIDS CAN BE STUBBORN ABOUT trying something new. Just tell your obstinate offspring that what's for dinner is grilled cheese part II, a BLT with a bonus, and son-of-pizza all in one dish. Tell them if they promise to eat a green vegetable of their choice you'll treat them to a salad of fave fruits alongside that mysterious main dish.

All right, so what if such tactics are more of trick on them and a treat for you? This quick-fix menu provides a warming winter meal with good food value. Quick because it's full of short cuts—a prepared crust you can buy in the refrigerated case at the market, along with pre-shredded cheeses and pre-seasoned bread crumbs. And what could be more warming than something melty from the oven? With fruit salad and—perhaps—broccoli on the side, five-a-day isn't so far away.

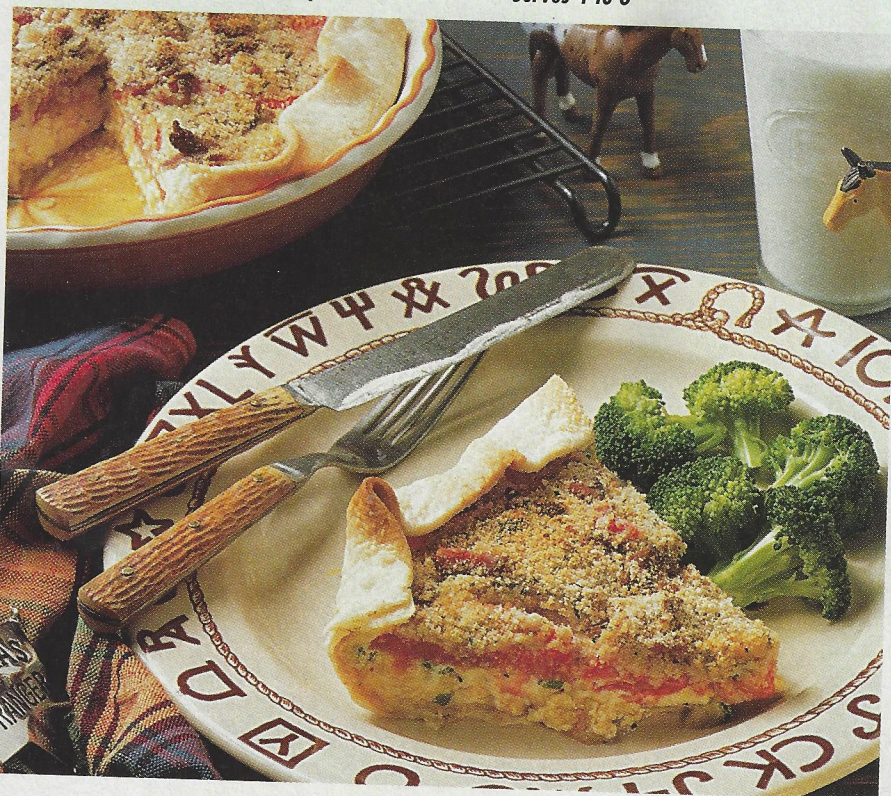

MELTY CHEESE PIE

- 1 prepared crust for 9-inch pie
- 8 ounces each, shredded mozzarella and mild cheddar
- 2 eggs, lightly beaten
- 2/3 cup non-fat milk
- 3 tablespoons sliced green onion
- 1/4 teaspoon black pepper
- 1 large tomato, sliced
- 3 slices bacon, cooked and crumbled
- 1/2 cup Italian-seasoned dry bread crumbs

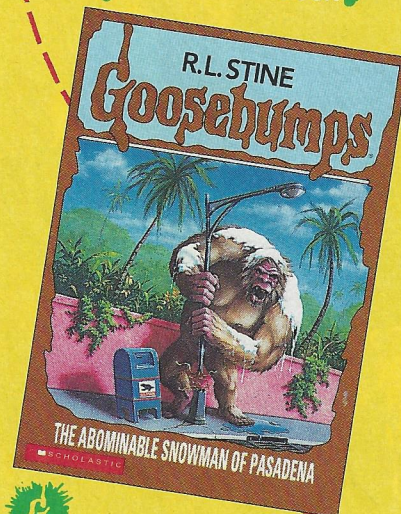

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Line 9-inch pie pan with prepared crust, allowing excess to extend over edge of plate. Distribute cheese evenly over crust. Set aside.

In a small bowl combine eggs, milk, green onion and pepper. Pour over cheese. Arrange tomato slices evenly over mixture. Combine bacon and bread crumbs and sprinkle over tomatoes. Loosely fold excess dough toward center of pie. Bake 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 325 degrees and bake 30 minutes longer. Let stand 10 minutes before serving.

Blood

BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN

Blood Brothers chronicles the recording of Secret Garden, Murder Incorporated, Blood Brothers, and This Hard Land in an intimate study of the creative process. As Springsteen starts off alone with his acoustic guitar, trying different tempos and styles, his bandmates write out their charts and frame their parts. A quick take and a playback reveal that the approach is too aggressive, calling for a group discussion and revisions.

Springsteen is known as a perfectionist, and it is here in the studio that we learn how he moves a song along from inception to execution.

At one point, Springsteen stops to consider their progress and speaks with the band. "The song is a narrative," he says. "It goes from Point A to Point B and it all adds up as some story being told. The minute that chain gets broken by anything, the song starts to crumble from the inside."

"What gets used is totally up to Mr. Springsteen," observes record mixer Bob Clearmountain. "He takes in everyone's advice and comments and then figures out what he wants."

Springsteen the worldwide phenomenon has been a media icon since Time and Newsweek simultaneously ran cover stories on him in 1975. Yet it wasn't until his 1980 masterpiece The River that Springsteen had his first #1 album. But long before Born In The U.S.A., Glory Days and Dancing In The Dark, Springsteen was perfecting his artistry, touring endlessly and dealing with the concerns of a nation seeking spiritual transformation. The loyalty of his fans can only be attributed to his untiring loyalty to them.

Of Irish-Italian ancestry, Bruce Frederick Joseph Springsteen was born in 1949, the son of a bus driver and a secretary. His simple New Jersey roots would provide the foundation for this remarkable poet and musician, an artist who lives with critical and commercial acclaim without losing his persona as a working-class hero.

Longtime Springsteen producer Chuck Plotkin says, "In the end what you come to an artist for is his sense of things, his vision, his understanding—a perspective on what it means to be a human creature. There's no one around who has Bruce's sense of things besides Bruce, and you can't go for that to anyone else. And the band shares that with him. They have a shared understanding of a world that we get a glimpse into only through their work."

Brothers

Springsteen got his first guitar when he was 13 years old; by 14 was playing in his first group, The Castiles. By 1972, the E Street Band was taking shape and he was signed to CBS Records by the legendary John Hammond, the visionary who launched Bob Dylan's recording career.

Springsteen's early records sold moderately well as he built a devoted following with his extremely well-staged live shows. Critic Jon Landau, who would later become his manager, wrote in 1974: "I saw rock and roll's future and its name is Bruce Springsteen."

Born To Run (1975) was Springsteen's first hit single, topping out at #23. Because of contractual disputes, he was barred from recording for three years, but he continued performing and wrote hits for other artists such as Manfred Mann ("Blinded By the Light" went #1 in 1977).

The stark vision of Darkness On The Edge Of Town arrived in 1978, followed by the stunning double album The River. The stripped-down Nebraska came in 1982, preceding Springsteen's messages to the masses in 1984's Born In The U.S.A.

At the height of mass acclaim, and after working steadily with the E Street Band for years, Springsteen called it quits for recording with them in 1984. Drummer Max Weinberg, now the hard working musical director of Late Night with Conan O'Brien, says, "When the band broke up, one of the things that struck me first was that I wouldn't get to play this music anymore. The possibility of never playing these songs again was extraordinarily depressing."

Occasional performances with the band followed as Springsteen pursued solo projects, appeared at benefit concerts, and created such unforgettable songs as Streets of Philadelphia, which earned four Grammys and an Academy Award. Philadelphia's director, Jonathan Demme, was chosen to direct the music video for the live recording of 1995's Murder Incorporated, which is a powerful highlight of Blood Brothers.

Demme was so moved by the private Manhattan club date that he recalls, "It started out great and it got better and better...an unforgettable life experience."

Springsteen's manager Jon Landau puts it this way: "Bruce had always had an idea that whenever we did do a Greatest Hits album, it would be a nice time to sort of sum things up. That might be a good time to reassemble the band."

After such a long hiatus, tensions ran high before the first downbeat. Producer Chuck Plotkin says, "How's everybody gonna feel playing together? It's been years since we've done this. It could be amazing—or it could be a catastrophe."

The completed composition of a Springsteen song belies the intricacy and personal dynamics in the studio. To gain insights into the real scenario, we follow the course of the songs as they evolve and eventually crystallize. Blood Brothers may be the truest exploration of the modern recording process ever documented.

Neophytes and experienced alike will enjoy the subtleties, such as setting up the "headphone mix" for each of the players. For example, the drummer may need a louder bass to lock in the intensity of a Springsteen groove. Clarence "Big Man" Clemons may need a stronger vocal mix to wrap his saxophone around, blending with Springsteen's soulful harmonica.

AFTER MORE THAN A DECADE APART, BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN reunited with his E Street Band to record new songs for 1995's "Greatest Hits" collection. It was a momentous reunion—a reunion captured in "Bruce Springsteen: Blood Brothers." This world premiere on The Disney Channel invites us into the domain of "The Boss," a megastar of modern music.

Once the homework is done and the session begins, we begin to fathom how tight this group is. "One of the most deeply satisfying things about working with the band," says Chuck Plotkin, "is that the whole thing happens at once. And you can tell at the end of four minutes that basically you've just made a record."

The Disney Channel's New
Primetime Sci-Fi Adventure
Debuts February 5

T BEGINS AS A PRANK played by two mischievous students on a science field trip. But when that prank interacts with a solar eclipse, a strange electrical storm, and a mysterious magnetic field, the prank is on Paul Reynolds, one of the practical jokesters. Because this strange conjunction of phenomena turns physics on its head and opens a mysterious portal—a door—into another dimension.

When that door slams shut, Paul Reynolds discovers he's on the wrong side—and finds himself marooned in a parallel universe that scarcely resembles the world he knew.

Imagine, if you will, a world where the industrial revolution did not occur. Imagine a world where a limited science and a primitive technology are hailed as magic. And imagine a world where that magic is controlled and exploited by a ruthless elite who enslave the rest of the populace by proclaiming themselves "Spellbinders."

Welcome to the world of Spellbinder, The Disney Channel's new 26-episode primetime sci-fi adventure series. This fast-paced action-adventure show follows in the tradition of our popular series Ocean Girl. (Currently on hiatus, Ocean Girl will return to The Disney Channel this fall with a new season of episodes.) Spellbinder premieres Monday, February 5 at 7:30 p.m.

(Eastern/ Pacific time).

Playing Paul Reynolds in the series is Zybch Taros. As Paul struggles to adapt in his alien new world, he meets the resourceful and strongwilled Riana, portrayed by Gosia Piotrowska. At first distrusting him and disbelieving his story, Riana befriends the bewildered, and bewildering, young man. As allies the two must rely on Riana's woodcraft skills and Paul's knowledge of modern life to outmaneuver, outwit, and escape the deadly Spellbinders.

Can Paul find a way home? If the door between parallel universes is opened, can Spellbinders visit our world? Discover for yourself when you join Paul and Riana as the adventure begins on February 5.

MAN OF THE HOUSE

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN A NICE GUY FALLS FOR A BEAUTIFUL single mother and finds himself going toe to toe with her 12-year-old son? The result is Man of the House, starring Chevy Chase, Farrah Fawcett, and Jonathan Taylor Thomas (of "Home Improvement"). "My character, Jack, is a rather straightlaced lawyer type who at first thinks it's going to be easy to move in with his single-mom girlfriend," says Chevy Chase. "He doesn't foresee any problems with her son." Enter Thomas, who says of his character, "Ben is a nice guy who's a little rough around the edges because he's had a tough life. His father left when he was 6 and it was hard on him and his mother. He's always been able to get rid of the guys his mom dated, but this guy [Chevy Chase] poses a real challenge." Playing the object of affection is Farrah Fawcett. "What attracted me to this role," she says, "was my character's relationship to her son. The script touched on real human emotions. This is a '90s picture—it's about family and it deals with the issues and relationships of today."

CHARLES KURALT HOSTS THIS I BELIEVE

IN A PERIOD OF CHATTER, ringing bells, flashing lights, and sensational journalism, I think it's refreshing to have heartfelt statements of belief from thoughtful people on the air," says Charles Kuralt, "even if it's only once a week and very briefly." The distinguished journalist is describing the new series he introduces on The Disney Channel. Called This I Believe, the show presents short profiles of notable Americans explaining their personal philosophies. (This I Believe begins its run with a half-hour special on Feb. 25.) The Americans profiled on the series range from civil rights activist Rosa Parks to biologist Jane Goodall, from Pulitzer Prize-winning writer N. Scott Momaday to former UCLA basketball coach John Wooden. "If we listen to what the people on the show say—and we're not used to listening these days—I think viewers may find what is said to be inspirational in their own lives," Kuralt adds. There's also a personal note to Kuralt's chores as host of This I Believe. The show is a descendant of the acclaimed '50s radio show created by Edward R. Murrow. Murrow, a titan of broadcast journalism, was a colleague of the young Kuralt in the glory days at CBS. "I admired those radio shows, so there was a connection for me. I was inclined to say sure."

At 4½ She's Reading 3rd Grade Books

A child prodigy? Not at all! Your child, too can be reading one, two or three years beyond present age level...even if a "poor" reader now

Prove it to yourself...with this 10 day free trial!

Reading is fun for Sarah—as it should be for every child. At age four-and-a-half she's already choosing her own books at the San Diego, Cal. library.

She reads books many third graders find "hard going." Yet she won't enter first grade for another year.

Sarah is typical of thousands of children who learned to read with "Listen and Learn with Phonics"—a reading kit that actually makes reading fun.

"Listen and Learn with Phonics" was developed by a reading expert. It has been endorsed, after extensive testing, by teachers, schools, and educators.

This practical (and inexpensive) home-learning kit fascinates eager young minds from three to ten. The child hears the letters or sounds on a cassette, sees them in a book and then repeats them. This makes an absorbing game of better reading—with amazing results.

For Example: Slow or average readers show sudden-often spectacular-improvement in reading and spelling. Older children often advance their reading skills several years beyond their age level. Young "pre-schoolers" actually teach themselves to read by this simple but startlingly effective method.

Special Parent's Guide

A 32-page Parents' Guide is included. However, you don't need special teaching skills to use this program. Nor do you need any special knowledge of phonics.

In fact, of your child needs no special supervision on your part. This set is so simple, so fascinating, children can learn "on their own" without help.

10-Day Free Trial With Money-Back Guarantee!

Results are so dramatic, the publishers will make the complete kit available to your child with an equally dramatic FREE trial and guarantee.

Under the terms of this unusual offer you can test the kit for ten days. Unless you are pleased and satisfied in every way unless you see immediate results with your child, just return the set for a full refund of any money paid. Fill out and mail the coupon below today. If you wish to charge the kit to your credit card just check the coupon. There's no obligation, and six teaching games are included free—yours to keep whether you return the program or not.
